Many factors are involved in making it so apparently hard to bring production in line with consumption. One of the most persistent single obstacles, paradoxically enough, comes from the effort on the part of most dairymen to improve their efficiency. The main way in which they try to lower unit costs is through increased size of herd and increased production per cow. The increase in production per cow expected in the next 10 years will be more than enough to meet the needs of any increase in population.

ADJUSTABLE FIXTURE SUGGESTED FOR LIGHTING IN THE DINING ROOM

A good dining room light fixture can give soft, cheerful lighting to create an atmosphere of restful charm, to make food look more appetizing, and to show off lively silverware and china, says the Virginia Farm and Home Electrification Council.

A dining room fixture that is becoming more and more popular is the adjustable overhead light, which can be raised or lowered to supply various amounts of light.

The dining room table is often used for close work, such as studying and sewing, where plenty of light is needed. The adjustable fixture can be lowered to give a high intensity light for such work.

For general lighting, the adjustable fixture can be raised to give a room full of light.

The Council says it is important to choose the proper fixture for the dining room. The adjustable fixture should be equipped with three 75-watt or four 60-watt incandescent bulbs, and should have a glass diffuser to prevent brightness and glare.

Appomattox is a growing town.

FARM NEWS

Little Improvement Seen In Dairy Net Income

Little improvement is expected in net income for most Appomattox dairymen during the next year. Increased production costs resulting from the drought may more than off-set price increase.

There appears to be a continuation of the trend toward larger, more specialized dairy operations. Since 1944, more than 1,000,000 farms have stopped selling milk and cream. This is a much faster rate of decrease than for all types of farms.

In spite of decreases of cow numbers, total milk production this year set new records in the United States and in Virginia. In the past 10 years, production per cow has increased 20% in the nation, and 24% in Virginia. Production per cow is expected to increase another 20% in the next ten years.

With increased emphasis on high production per cow, culling practices have shifted. The greater number of heifers kept and of cows eliminated indicates that dairymen are either experiencing a more rapid turnover in their herds, or culling more intensively from the new additions to the herd. Herd depreciation is a significant item of cost. Ways to prolong the productive life of the cow are sure to receive greater attention.

In the field of new developments, the rate of adoption of bulk milk tanks on farms has been spectacular and continues rapidly. In markets under Federal Milk Orders the amount of milk handled in bulk rose from 13% in 1955 to 26% in 1956, and 40% this year. Practically all Virginia producers shipping to the Washington market now have bulk tanks. By 1960, it is estimated that 3-4 of Virginia Grade A dairies will be using tanks.

Current predictions hold that the dairy industry will be palgued with excess supplies for some time to come and that the industry will have to learn to live with these surpluses.
